Beth sy'n bwysig i What's important to

It seems that the following list are important to ....:

Mum, Dad and older sister

I like music and singing ( Cyw songs and nursery rhymes)

I like playing with musical instruments- drums, bells

I like to lie on my back on the 'keep warm blanket' replicating the sounds I hear.

I like to play with sensory objects and roll them in my hands

I like to take my shoes and socks off when inside

I like to be in a familiar surroundings - this makes me feel safe

I like to be close to Sian (my 1-1 support). Sian knows what's important to me and she makes me feel safe.

I like going to the soft play room. I can freely roll around the room

When I don't wish to continue with a particular activity I will push away.

I like yogurt, bread sticks, rice cakes and water

Hoffi ac edmygu Like and admire

She is very clever- she is able to copy sounds and listen.

She is a happy child..

She responds well to being touch - and tolerates many textures.

Close relationship with my 1:1 (Sian) is very important for me as she will understand and respond to my nonverbal communication queues.

It's important that my parents and my 1-1 communicate before and at the end of each session – this will ensure that important information is shared.

I need support with my eating. I need the food to be placed in my hand and at times I need a lot of encouragement. Also allow plenty of time for me to eat.

As I don't like my nappy to be changed, I would like to be changed quickly while singing to me. To ensure that I'm safe I need to be changed on a mat on the floor.

To ensure that I'm safe I need to be transferred from one room to another by using a pushchair

When I'm sad, I like to listen to nursery rhymes as it helps me to self-regulate my emotions.

To develop my trunk muscles provide me with regular sessions in the soft play room and opportunity to be lifted and placed in a sitting position for a short period of time (follow the physio's advice)

I can be very sleepy due to my anaemia. I will turn to one side and fall asleep. I can then be transferred into a cot.

To develop my right side directional listening skills, provide me daily activities such as playing musical instruments on my right side and allow time for me to turn towards the sound. My VI teacher will monitor and share further activities.

To develop my sensory skills it's important that I have daily session exploring various materials with my hands and feet (VI teacher will give further advice)

Use songs and rhymes to develop my language skills.

For others to understand that I am blind and I will not learn about the world around me in the same way as my friends. I will always use my other senses to make sense of the world.
